Andrew Simon @AndrewSimonMLB by Sunday, September 28, 2020, none of the eight Wild Card Series matches were resolved when the last two National League postseason spots are up for grabs and many more teams are still jockeying for seeding. Finally, after a wild baseball afternoon, the 2020 postseason field is set. Sixteen teams are involved, and none of the eight Wild Card series matches were settled on Sunday, with the last two National League postseason spots up for grabs and many more teams still jockeying for seeding. Finally, after a wild baseball afternoon, the 2020 postseason field is set. There are 16 teams involved, and the action begins with four American League series on Tuesday. Four NL Series will be running on Wednesday, making it the same day with eight playoff matches for the first time in history. Here's a look at each of the best three Wild Card Series games, a breakdown by league:
• The 2020 postseason schedule for AMERICAN LEAGUE AL games is scheduled for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday (if necessary). Matches are played on a higher-seeded home court, and all subsequent rounds are played in neutral positions. Blue Jays (8) At Rays (1) -- Tuesday, 17.m pages ET TBS Game 1 startersTOR: Matt Shoemaker (0-1, 4.71 ERA)TB: Blake Snell (4-2, 3.24 ERA) The Rays finished with the best record in the AL and claimed their first AL East title since 2010. Their reward? We're up against a division rival who played hard this season. The Rays won six of 10 blue jays, but two of those wins were off-play, and Toronto defeated Tampa Bay, 48-44. The Blue Jays arrived perhaps a little early this season, with a young, powerful offense capable of making runs in the corps. Pitching is a question mark, as Toronto made a surprise move to send Matt Shoemaker, not ace Hyun Jin Ryu, to start in Game 1. The Rays, pitching of quality, are looking to get over the hump in the postseason after falling in the division series in each of their four appearances since advancing to the 2009 World Series. White Sox (7) at A's (2) on Tuesday, 3 .m. ET ESPN Game 1 startsCHW: Lucas Giolito (4-3, 3.48 ERA)OAK: Jesús Luzardo (3-2, 4.12 ERA) The White Sox turned potential into production this season by combining exciting young players like Giolito and rookie Luis Robert with solid veteran additions like Yasmani Grandal and Dallas Keuchel. Chicago is in the sequel for the first time since 2008, although a 3-9 finish dropped the club from first place in the division to a Wild Card berth. Now the Sox face an A team trying to end the franchise's recent postseason struggles. Oakland won the AL West despite losing star coin player Matt Chapman to a gun-ass final injury that has eliminated its 11th-place finish. The club lost the AL Wild Card game on each of its last three trips and made it THE AL Championship in 2006. Astros (6) (6) Twins (3) -- Tuesday, 2 p..m. ET on ABC Game 1 startersHOU: Zack Greinke (3-3, 4.03 ERA)MIN: Kenta Maeda (6-1, 2.70 ERA) These two teams enter the extended season in completely different circumstances, with the Twins ending with a 16-8 kick to beat AL Central and the Astros faltering to finish 8-16. Houston (29-31 overall) lost Gerrit Cole in the off-season and then Justin Verlander to injury, leaving Greinke to lead the young rotation. The Astros' offense also took a step back in 2020 when reigning AL Rookie of the Year Yordan Alvarez was injured and Jose Altuve put in career low numbers. Houston remains dangerous, but at least Minnesota avoids a second-round game against the Yankees. The Twins, who haven't advanced past the ALDS since 2002, can bat with anyone, while No. 1 starter Maeda proved to be one of the best offseason additions on any team. Yankees (5) at Indians (4) -- Tuesday, 7 p.m. ET ESPN Game 1 startsNYY: Gerrit Cole (7-3, 2.84 ERA)CLE: Shane Bieber (8-1, 1.63 ERA) May not have a better passing match than Cole-Bieber, who should provide a riveting start to this series. Bieber, the likely AL Cy Young Award winner, leads Cleveland's rotation, which counts as helping break the sport's longest active championship drought. The Indians led the Majors in the rookie ERA, but he had one of the game's most anemising offenses despite best efforts by AL MVP candidate José Ramírez. It was a strange, up-and-down season for the Yankees, who became AL favorites, battled a cascade of injuries to key players for the second consecutive year, went through a mid-season vortex that nearly took them out of the playoff picture, and then recovered as their roster became healthier. Although New York lost six of its last eight games, it remains a daunting matchup led by MLB batting champion DJ LeMahieu and home run champion Luke You can. National League NL games are scheduled to be played Wednesday, Thursday and Friday (if necessary). Matches are played on a higher-seeded home court, and all subsequent rounds are played in neutral positions. Brewers (8) at Dodgers (1) -- Wednesday at 10 m PM ET in ESPN Game 1 startersMIL: TBALAD: Walker Buehler (1-0, 3.44 ERA) Just two years ago, these teams played a thrilling NL Championship series that went to Game 7 at Miller Park before L.A. ran away with a win. The Dodgers appear to have a bigger advantage this time, having produced the Majors' best record (43-17) and by far the biggest run difference (plus-136), while the Brewers backed up to the No. 8 NL seeds thanks to a 29-31 Giants loss Sunday. Thus, there is no such thing as a shock in the best-of-three series, and Milwaukee is dangerous, especially considering its shutdown duo behind the bullpen (Devin Williams and Josh Hader). Dodgers to win direct NL West title, trying to avoid a second straight early playoff exit and moving toward it. It. first championship since 1988. Reds (7) at Braves (2) -- Wednesday, noon ET ESPN Game 1 startersCIN: Trevor Bauer (5-4, 1.73 ERA)ATL: Max Fried (7-0, 2.25 ERA) This should be a sparkling battle between the Red Star-studded rattling and the Braves' power-packed lineup. Cincinnati has the NL Cy Young Award frontman in Bauer, not to mention Luis Castillo and Sonny Gray. Atlanta finished second in the Majors for the Dodgers in both points and homers, with staggering seasons for Marcell Ozuna, Freddie Freeman and Ronald Acuña Jr. Both teams want to capture elusive postseason success. This is the Reds' first trip to the playoffs since losing the 2013 NL Wild Card game, and Cincinnati hasn't won a series since 1995. The Braves have often been an October participant, but it's tied for the longest postseason series losing streak in MLB history, dropping 10 straight since the 2001 NLCS. Marlins (6) at Cubs (3) -- Wednesday at 2 m pm ET ABC Game 1 startsMIA: TBACHC: TBA MLB's second-longest active postseason drought is now over, and the Marlins are doing it for the first time since 2003, despite a COVID-19 game and a constant roster shuffle. Historically, the franchise hasn't made it to October often - this is its third trip - but once it has, it hasn't lost. Miami owns the highest postseason series winning percentage ever. This perfect record will be tested against a Cubs club that wants a second championship in its 2016 victory. Several key players from that group remain, but the clock can tick. First-year manager David Ross (also part of this group) guided the Cubs to their third division title in the last five seasons with the help of Yu Darvish (NL Cy Young Award nominee) and second starter Kyle Hendricks. Cardinals (5) at Padres (4) -- Wednesday at 5 m PM ET ESPN2 Game 1 startsSTL: TBASD: TBA Padres emerged as one of the most exciting and talented teams in this year's majors, led by NL MVP nominee Fernando Tatis Jr. and Manny Machado. The Cardinals, on the other hand, had to win sitting for more than two weeks at the start of the season due to positive COVID-19 tests and did not reach a playoff spot until Sunday. St. Louis, which reached the NL Championship Series a year ago, is seeking its fourth postseason victory over San Diego in as many attempts after winning nine of 10 games in the NL Division Series in 1996, 2005 and -06. If the Padres can halt this trend, they'll take the first step toward their first World Series title. The big question right now is the status of the team's top two starters, and San Diego remains hopeful that Dineson Lamet and Mike Clevinger can overcome injuries to take the mound in Game 1 and Game 3 (f necessary).
